

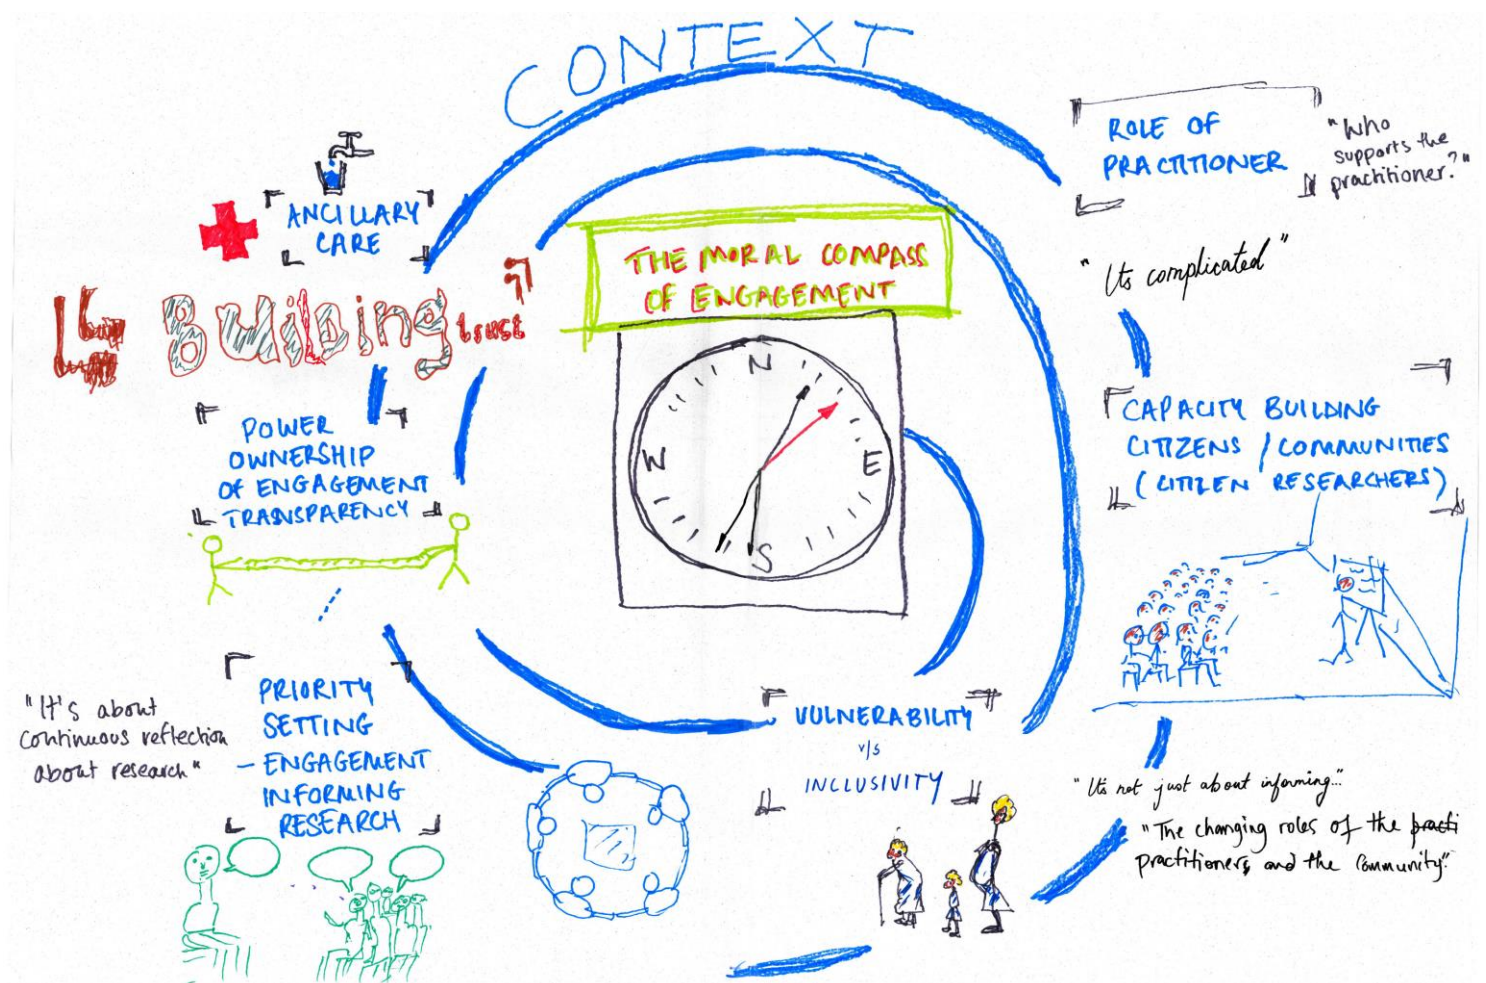

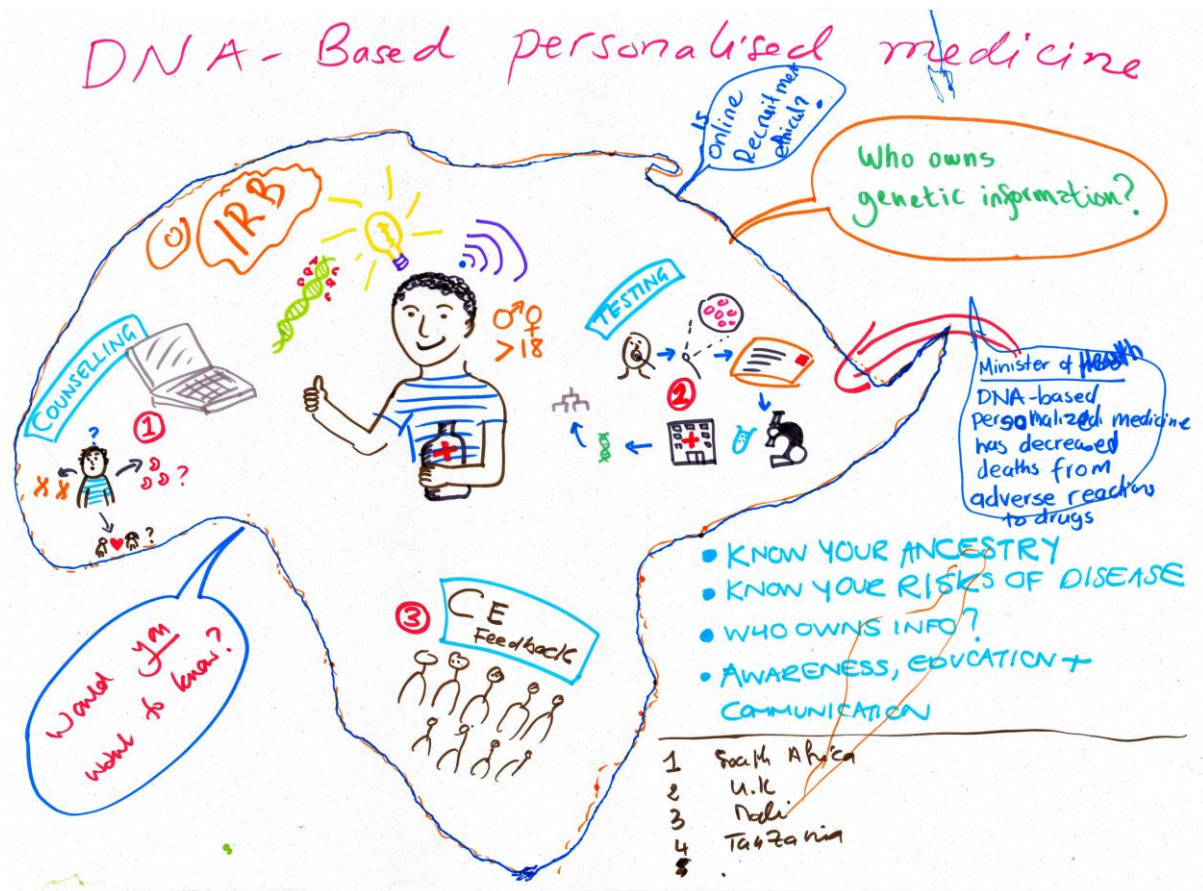

Graphic Representations of Key Issues in Health Engagement from the Simplifying Complex Issues with Visual Thinking Exercise

In this exercise – which took place at the 2017 Wellcome International Engagement Workshop participants – a diverse group of practitioners from community engagement, policy, education, biomedical research and beyond were asked to split into groups around issues that were common amongst them in their professional practice and imagine their issue as the front cover story of a magazine. Participants were then asked to think of, discuss and draw the key headlines, quotes and images surrounding their stories along with to create an engaging visual narrative. The visual results of the exercise are laid out below.
