

CONNECT/Global Health Research In Focus

The lived experiences of Covid-19 by front line health workers

The Covid-19 pandemic continues to have an enormous impact in all countries globally with health professionals at the forefront of the care for patients with the corona virus, themselves at risk or having contracted the virus. Hear their voices as they share their Covid experiences and strategies for supporting one another and managing the emotional impacts of their lived experiences.

Chair

Sassy Molyneux, Professor in Global Health, Oxford University, UK, previously based at the KEMRI-Wellcome Trust Research Programme in Kilifi, Kenya.

Speakers

Sarita Pyatha, Research Nurse, Oxford University Clinical Research Unit, Nepal

Zeela Zaizay, Liberia Country Program Manager, REDRESS, Liberia

Mwanamvua Boga, Nurse Manager and Trainer on Communication Skills, Kenya Medical Research Institute - Wellcome Trust Research Programme, Kenya

Josefridah Nyavula Ngowa, Emergency & Critical Care Clinician, Kilifi County Hospital, Kenya

Ane Haaland, Social Scientist and Trainer, University of Oslo; Atlantis Medical College, Norway

January 26, 2021 🕒 11:00 GMT (London)

REGISTER NOW

@info_TGHN
@KEMRI_Wellcome
@OUCRU_Vietnam
@OUCRU_PE

connect.tghn.org