

UK Health Security Agency International Health Regulations Strengthening Project

The International Health Regulations (IHR) Strengthening Project is a UK Aid funded technical assistance project working to support improved IHR compliance and global health security. The project works in partnership with public health institutions across Africa and Asia to develop strong public health systems with enhanced capability to prevent, detect and respond to public health emergencies

How we work

Peer support and mentoring for public health leaders

Strengthening partner IHR coordination, planning and strategic function

Workforce development through needs assessment, planning and strategies

Context-specific technical training and strengthening of existing systems

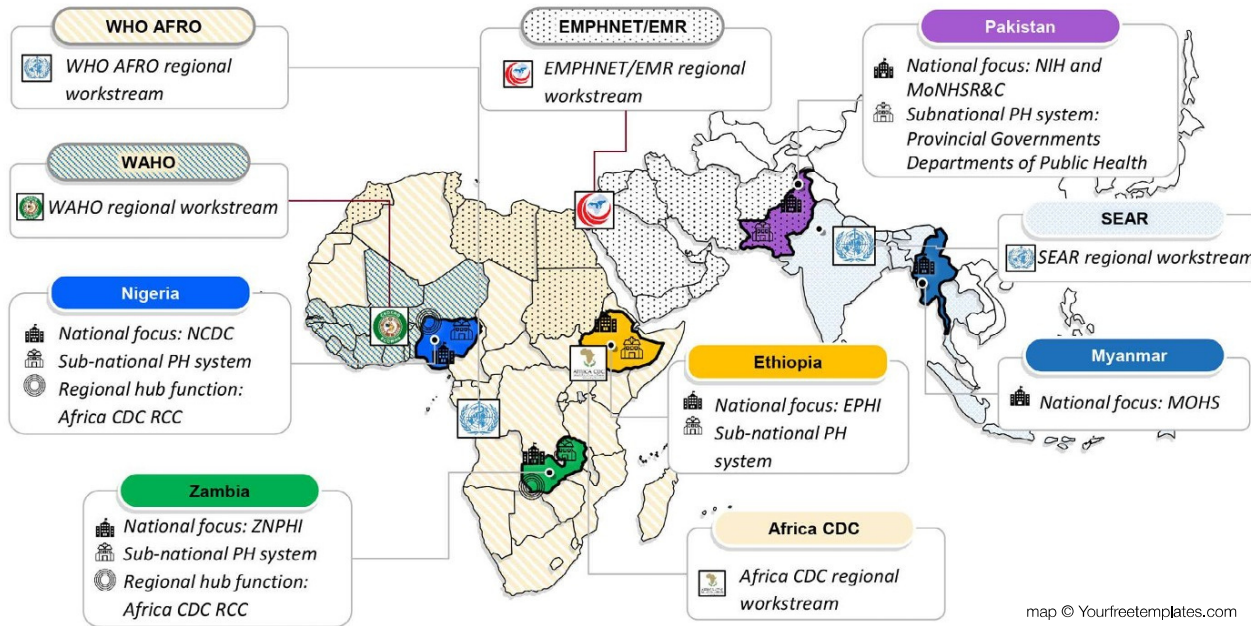

Expert technical areas

- biosafety and biosecurity
- chemical hazards and poisoning
- epidemiology and disease surveillance
- emergency preparedness and response
- information systems
- laboratory systems and networks
- One Health
- points of entry
- workforce capability building

Areas of Focus

The project works across Africa and Asia with National Public Health Institutes, ministries of health and regional organisations, to support public health system strengthening and IHR implementation.
