

SPEAKERS -BIOS

	Prof. Violet Naanyu is Associate Professor, Moi University Kenya, Visiting Scholar, Aga Khan University Kenya, and Graduate Faculty Scholar &amp; Member of the Graduate Faculty of Northern Illinois University, Illinois, USA (2020-2024). She is Field Co-Director of Research, AMPATH Program (ampathkenya.org/research), Founder and Director, AMPATH Qualitative Research Core; Member, Africa Ethics Working Group (AEWG) (neurogene.org/groups/aewg/) She is Member, National Scientific and Ethics Committee, NACOSTI Kenya; Committee Member, Bioethics Society of Kenya; and Ethics Committee Member on two institutional research and ethics committees in Kenya. She is trained in Medical Sociology, Medical Anthropology, and Bioethics. She is interested in global bioethics and collaborative evaluations designed to improve research and care in resource-limited settings.
	Prof. Ann Wanjiru Mwangi is an Associate Professor of Biostatistics, School of Science and Aerospace Studies, Moi University. She has been involved in training and supervising undergraduate and graduate students at Moi University College of Health for over 10 years. Also within the Academic Model Providing Access to Health Care (AMPATH) she serves as Co-Director of the AMPATH Data and Analysis Team (ADAT) where she oversees data management and analysis of various research projects. In terms of research, she has over 15 years' experience in grant writing, study design and high-level statistical analysis that has resulted in several funded grants and publications in peer-reviewed journals.
	Dr. Jepchirchir Kiplagat is a PhD graduate from School of Public Health, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, South Africa. She hold a Master's Degree in Public Health (Epidemiology and Disease Control) from Moi University. She is a lecturer in Moi University school of Public health. She support the AMPATH Research Program Office by providing administrative support, technical oversight and management of research projects conducted at Moi University. Further, she provides training for project teams; and ensure institutional reporting requirements are met, as well as adherence to sponsor and institutional policies. She is a member of the ethics committee at Moi University/Moi Teaching and Referral Hospital Institutional Research Ethics Committee (IREC) and a member of AFREHealth.
	Prof. Dinah Chelagat is an Associate Professor of Midwifery. She is a PhD graduate from the University of Free States in South Africa and holds a Master of Public Health Degree in International Health from The University of Alabama in Birmingham and a second Masters in degree in Family Planning Programme Management from University of Exeter, Institute of Population Studies. She is the current Dean of the School of Nursing and Midwifery in Moi University. Her research interests are in Midwifery research especially in Post Natal Care and Family Planning. She is also a member of the Midwifery Association of Kenya (MAK).

Dr. Priscah Mosol is a Senior Lecturer and chair of Department of Nursing Education, Leadership Management and Research in the School of Nursing and Midwifery, Moi University. She holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree (PhD) in Medical Education from Moi University and a fellowship in Nursing Education and Leadership(AHPEL) a Master of Science in Nursing (MScN) in Maternal and Neonatal Health from Moi University and Bachelor of Science in Nursing from University of Eastern Africa Baraton. Her research interests are in Health Professions Education, clinical teaching and Learning for Nurses faculty development and Continuing Professional Development (CPD). Currently she serves as the co-lead AFREHealth East Africa chapter a mentor in the AFREHealth Pedagogical course and a reviewer in the Moi University/Moi Teaching and referral Hospital Ethics Board (IREC) and in the Kenya Journal of Nursing and Midwifery.

Dr. Elijah Kirop is a lecturer in Moi School of Nursing and Midwifery since 2012. He has a PhD in Midwifery from The University of Manchester and an MScN in Midwifery from Moi University. He is currently a post Doc. Student with University of Manchester. His research interests are in research designs, systematic reviews , interpretation of data and report writing

Mr. Benson Milimo is a lecturer in Moi School of Nursing and Midwifery since 2012. He is a PhD student in Mount Kenya University; He holds a Master of Science degree in Maternal and Neonatal Health from Moi University. His research interests are in Midwifery. His research interests are in qualitative research. He also serves in the Ethics Review Board for Moi University and Moi Teaching and referral Hospital (IREC) and editor in the Kenya Journal of Nursing and Midwifery.